UW-MILWAUKEE 60,000 HOUR CHALLENGE

UWM is a university without boundaries. More than any other institution of higher education in Wisconsin, we have investing in, created a culture of, and committed to civic engagement and campus and community partnerships. UWM’s culture of civic engagement, and practice of creating opportunities to service locally, nationally and globally is vital to our state, as 90% of UWM graduates remain in Wisconsin, and therefore we shape many of the state's future leaders.

For our 60th Anniversary, Chancellor Mark Mone challenged the university to celebrate this milestone through a demonstration of our commitment to civic engagement by tracking 60,000 hours of service. In response to this challenge, the Center for Community-Based Learning, Leadership, and Research (CCBLLR) collaborated across campus to provide opportunities for students, faculty and staff, and alumni to complete and log at least 60,000 hours of community service. The response has been overwhelming! We smashed our goal by logging over 66,000 hours of service and almost 12,000 of those hours came from individuals and groups that had never logged their service with CCBLLR in the past.

This year we have been reminded of how much service and community engagement regularly occurs at UWM, and we've just scratched the surface. Not only did we see an increase in tracked hours, we've also seen a commitment to forming genuine and lasting partnerships, a key to building a strong community. The CCBLLR extends and enormous THANK YOU to everyone who participated in service and engagement this past year. Let's continue to strengthen the legacy of UWM's commitment to enhancing the quality of life in the city of Milwaukee, the state of Wisconsin, and beyond!
