Authors of the pamphlets include John Stuart Mill, Lucretia Mott, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, and Max Eastman. Pamphlets both for and against women's rights are included. Fifty of the pamphlets are from conventions, committees, and various state bodies. Specific subjects represented include suffrage, marriage and relations of the family, socialism, women in industry, moral reform, and women's education. There is also some material on women's rights in England and France.

(Description from the Library of Congress.)