Microfilm collection of manuscripts on cultural anthropology. --
A collection [of 180 microfilm reels] from the University of Chicago, originally covering Meso-American cultures and American Indians but later expanded to include cultural anthropology in general. Most of the collection consists of ethnolinguistic materials (grammar notes, vocabularies, dictionaries, phonology, linguistic atlases, texts, translations, field data), but there are also materials on ethnography, field diaries and notes, social studies, interviews, etc.

Description from the Library of Congress