Transcripts of 159 interviews conducted for the Oral History Office, Sangamon State University in the 1970s. The interviews provide source material for the study of one-room schools, coal mining and trade unionism, agriculture, the experience of Blacks, Jews, and Italian-Americans, mental health care, banking, politics, family life, and railroads in central Illinois. The memoirs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the interviewee. [UWM Libraries have Parts I and II on microfiche.)
