The Value of Professional Development

For Home Visitors and Family Support Professionals

- Professional development is key to achieving better outcomes for children and families.
- Ongoing professional development helps home visitors/family support practitioners stay current with new research, policies and practices, thereby enhancing their effectiveness.
- Professional development positively effects staff retention and organizational performance.
- Ongoing professional development helps home visitors/family support practitioners to stay current with new research, policies and practices and to maintain professional growth.
- Professional development is an integral component of early childhood programs and services.

Home visitor, Family Resource Center of St. Croix Valley, with father and son.

Sources

