Types of Fundraising

While bake sales are quite popular here at UWM, there are a number of other types of fundraisers to try your hand at. Let’s look at 5 different categories:

SALES: From used books to apparel or accessories, sales can generate funds quickly at in one time events. The difficulty lies in choosing the right items. Consider asking members and other students what they’d be interested in.

PLEDGE-A-THON: These are usually challenges set forth that raise money such as: walking for a certain amount of time or distance, bowling, sitting, dancing, and so on.
Types of Fundraising

DONATIONS: Seeking out money or in-kind donations from corporations, foundations, or sponsorships can help you reach your goals.

EVENTS: These include dances or charity balls, live and silent auctions, dinners, talent shows, runs/walks, competitions (cooking, karaoke, etc.), or event profit sharing nights at local business.

SERVICES: Valet Car Parking, holiday gift wrapping, lawn care, lessons (painting, music, cooking), and car washes are all examples of services you can offer the community for small fees.

Planning a Fundraiser
Six Steps to Follow

1. Set Goals
2. Evaluate the Past
3. Determine Resources
4. Brainstorm Strategies
5. Choose Your Strategies
6. Finalize the Details
Step One: Set Goals

What are the organization’s fundraising goals for the upcoming year? (Amount of money needed, funding for a specific event, awareness for a cause, relationship building for organization, etc.)
Planning a Fundraiser

Step Two: Evaluate Past Fundraising Activities

- How has the organization raised funds in the past?
- What has worked well?
- What hasn’t worked? Can these activities be modified/adapted, or should they be eliminated?
- Are there any unique opportunities this year that you can take advantage of? (Ex. anniversary, campus-wide event, etc.)

Step Three: Determine Available Resources

Determine the types of resources on hand and any details of each resource available.

Step Four: Brainstorm Potential Strategies

Brainstorm a list of all of the potential strategies that the organization could use to fundraise in the upcoming year. At this point in the process, do not evaluate any of them for potential success.

Step Five: Choose Your Strategies

Now, using the brainstorm list, determine which fundraising activities are feasible for the organization to achieve based on the available resources (time, money, energy), and where you have the potential to raise the most funds.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Strategy</th>
<th>Goals Targeted by this Strategy</th>

<th>When</th>
<th>Who</th>
<th>Cost</th>

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bake Sale</td>
<td>Cover team registration fee for tournament</td>
<td>$100</td>
<td>Individuals in Union over the lunch hour</td>
<td>Members will make baked goods to sell.</td>
<td>Oct 15</td>
<td>Member s will bake or staff the table.</td>
<td>No org cost. Volunteer s will donate baking supplies</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Step Six: Finalize Details

For each fundraising strategy that you plan to use, determine the following information:

- Strategy (How you will raise funds/type of fundraiser)
- Projected Costs
- Projected Income
- Net Funds Raised

Next, list other goals this strategy will meet (ex. generate publicity, build group morale, connect the organization with new audiences, contribute to recruitment of members, etc.)

Finally, list each step you will need to take, who will be completing it, and by when.
