

Anthropology, Genetic Diversity, and Ethics

A workshop at the Center for Twentieth Century Studies
University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

February 12-13, 1999
Organized by Trudy Turner

Welcome and Introduction by Trudy Turner
Anthropology Newsletter Report
Program
Participants
Comments

Session Transcripts:

- Session One: Issues Relating to Population Identification
- Session Two: Ancient DNA: A Special Case of Population Identification
- Keynote Lecture by Alice Martin
- Session Three: Issues Relating to Informed Consent
- Session Four: Successful Research Collaborations
- Session Five: Issues Relating to Research Outcomes

Workshop Bibliography

This website contains transcripts of the talks presented at the workshop. Some transcripts may be incomplete. Participants were given the option of editing their transcripts.

This site is dedicated to
Frank Dukepoo
1944-1999

Inquiries: anthgen@uwm.edu

The workshop took place at the UWM Hefter Center, 3271 North Lake Drive, Milwaukee.

Sponsored by the Department of Anthropology and the Center for Twentieth Century Studies, College of Letters and Science, with support from the Graduate School, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee,
the American Association of Anthropological Genetics,
and the Center for the Study of Bioethics, Medical College of Wisconsin, and made possible by a grant from the National Science Foundation.

This web site was funded by the National Science Foundation.

