

Liam Callanan

Fall 2021

English 615

English 615 is the capstone course for creative writing majors focusing on fiction. As such, it's an intensive course designed to challenge students to apply all they've learned with respect to writing, revising, and critical reading. Students will generate new work and revise old material, and have opportunities to lead discussion. Finally, the course will explore the different ways students can put their creative writing experience to use after graduation.