

2023 Constitution Day Commemoration

What's a Constitution For?

UWM Lubar Entrepreneurship Center 2100 E. Kenwood

September 22 @ 3:00 - 5:00 PM

Free pocket Constitutions available at the event!

A constitution is a blueprint for government. It establishes the structures and processes of government. A constitution is also the embodiment of a set of principles. It reflects the political values of a nation. But, really, what is a constitution for? A constitution is for the people who are governed by it. It should serve their purposes and advance their interests. But constitutions need interpretation, and judges are the key interpreters of constitutions. How do citizens engage with those judges, and how do those judges engage with citizens? Whether through formal means or informal means, citizens and judges communicate in numerous ways.

Presented by

Dr. Wendy Martinek

Professor of Political Science,
Binghamton University (SUNY)

UWM Alumna – Master's Degree in Political Science

All educational institutions that receive federal funds host educational programming to commemorate the signing of the U.S. Constitution on September 17, 1787