UWM Union Theatre presents
The 15th Annual Festival of Films in French
February 3-12, 2012

In Memory of Dr. Sheldon Stone

All films are in French and other languages w/English subtitles. All films are FREE and open to the public!

The 14th Annual Festival of Films in French celebrates the diversity and global reach of French-language cinema. The twelve films, all Milwaukee Premieres, explore Canada's Far North, Quebec, Haiti, French Guiana, Tunis, Monaco, the French provinces, Paris, and more. The Festival opens with Ce qu’il faut pour vivre, the saga of an Inuit hunter lost in a Quebec sanatorium, a beautiful ode to human resilience. Migration, exile and return are themes of several films, from the documentary on novelist Dany Laferrière, who returns from Quebec to his native Haiti, to the struggles of a Kurdish teenager, an illegal alien, in France. The festival highlights strong films by women filmmakers Karin Albou, Josiane Balasko, and Ursula Meir exploring cultural differences, sexuality, family and the environment. There is plenty of comedy as well, from the children's classic Petit Nicolas to the sophisticated Arnacoeur (Heartbreaker) on Valentine's Day weekend. The festival includes Marcel l’Herbier's L’Argent (Money), a recently restored masterpiece of the silent film era on the very relevant theme of financial speculation, greed and corruption. Milwaukee audiences will also view for the first time a masterwork of the film noir, never released but recently reconstituted, Clouzot’s Inferno.

In addition to the 12 films, Union Programming is screening pre-and-post festival French-language films: Heartbeats, to be presented by the Milwaukee LGBT Film/Video Festival, and an evening with French filmmaker Rose Lowder.

This program is made possible with the generous support of French Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs, the Centre National de la Cinématographie, the Grand Marnier Foundation, the Florence Gould Foundation, and highbrow entertainment for the Tournées Festival films, the French Consulate in Chicago, the Québec Government Office in Chicago, and Dr. Richard Stone. We are also grateful to many UWM co-sponsors: Union Programming, the Center for International Education (CIE), the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies (CLACS), Middle East and North African Studies Certificate program, LGBT Film and Video Festival, the Jewish Studies Program, the Women's Studies Program, the Cinema and Media Studies Program, the Film Department, the Department of French, Italian, and Comparative Literature, the MA in Language, Literature and Translation, with community co-sponsorship from SWAAF (Southeast Wisconsin Academic Alliance in French) and the Alliance Française of Milwaukee.
Ce qu’il faut pour vivre (Inuujjutiksaq) (Necessities of Life)

Synopsis: During the 1950s-era tuberculosis epidemic in Canada’s Far North, Inuit hunter Tiivii (played by Natar Ungalaaq, Best Actor, 29th Genii awards) is taken to a sanatorium in Quebec City. Uprooted and faced with a completely alien world, he finds himself unable to communicate with anyone. Tiivii finally gets a little help from a nurse who has a sick Inuit orphan transferred to the hospital. The boy acts as a translator and cultural ambassador, but also gives Tiivii a reason to get better: he hopes to adopt the boy and bring him into his Inuit family. Avoiding sentimentality and ideology, documentary director Pilon lets the performances do the work, and the results are moving.

Le chant des mariées (The Wedding Song)

Synopsis: Set in Nazi-occupied Tunis in 1942, The Wedding Song focuses on the friendship between teenagers Nour, a devout Muslim celebrating her engagement to Khaled, and her neighbor Myriam, a secular Jew forced into an arranged marriage to a wealthy older man. Hired as an informer by the Nazis in order to gain financial stability, Khaled will soon threaten to destroy the bonds between the two heroines. The Wedding Song plays close attention to the social and cultural spaces women carved out for themselves in restrictive societies, like the hammam spas.

The “Wedding Song,” a seductively fluid and tactile drama from the writer and director Karin Albou, explores love and identity through the prism of the female body and the rights of its owner... Filmed with subtle eroticism and dreamy intimacy, the girls’ bond becomes a compelling love story. Jeanette Catsoulis, The New York Times

Presented as part of The Tournées Festival.
Co-sponsored by CIE, the Jewish Studies Program, Middle East and North African Studies Certificate program, and the Women's Studies Program.

L’épine dans le coeur (A Thorn in the Heart)
Saturday, February 5, 5PM
Sunday, February 13, 3PM
MILWAUKEE PREMIERE
Synopsis: Best known for stories of whimsical dreamers desperate for love, like Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind (2004) Michel Gondry captures his most compelling protagonist yet in The Thorn in the Heart, a wonderfully affectionate documentary about his aunt Suzette. This kind, resilient matriarch worked as a schoolteacher in rural villages in France from 1952 to 1986; Gondry films his beloved relative reuniting with former colleagues and students, including a repatriated Franco-Algerian Muslim she taught in a mountain refugee camp in 1963. Gondry also explores Suzette’s relationship with her mentally fragile, gay son Jean-Yves, who suffered a breakdown after the death of his father - Gondry allows them the opportunity to present their version of events, which had led to decades-old hurt and misunderstanding. Presented as part of The Tournées Festival.
Co-sponsored by CIE and LGBT.

Welcome (Welcome)
Saturday, February 5, 9PM
Sunday, February 6, 7 PM
MILWAUKEE PREMIERE
Synopsis: Both a study of a budding friendship and a compassionate look at the perils faced by illegal immigrants, Philippe Lioret’s Welcome centers on Bilal, a 17-year-old Iraqi Kurd who is stuck in Calais, in Northern France, and Simon, a recently divorced swimming teacher. Desperate to join his girlfriend in London, Bilal vows to swim across the English Channel if he has to, setting the stage for his meeting with Simon. Welcome features richly drawn, fully fleshed-out lead characters; though not perfect, Bilal and Simon strive to be good, decent people. Acting veteran Vincent Lindon and first-time performer Firat Ayverdi beautifully play off each other as Simon and Bilal slowly start to form a tender surrogate father-son connection.
“The action takes place against a topical background, with the film offering a quietly impassioned critique of the French government’s harsh policies towards illegal immigrants.” Jonathan Romney, Screen Daily
Presented as part of the Tournées Festival.
Co-sponsored by CIE.

La dérive douce d’un enfant de Petit-Goâve
Sunday, February 6, 1PM
Monday, February 7, 7PM
MILWAUKEE PREMIERE
Synopsis: From Port-au-Prince to Paris by way of Montreal, New York and Saint-Malo, La dérive douce d’un enfant de Petit-Goâve follows the physical and spiritual itinerary of one of Quebec’s most charismatic writers and filmmakers, Dany Laferrière. Born in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and raised in Petit Goâve, Laferrière worked as a journalist in Haiti before moving to Canada in 1976. In 2009, Laferrière won the prestigious Prix Médicis for his 11th novel, L’énigme du retour. Tracing a similar path as in his novel, the film touches on his exile from Haiti, his stunning first novel, How to Make Love to a Negro Without Getting Tired, released 25 years ago, and his friendship with other Haitian writers including Frankétienne and Edwige Danticat who appear in the documentary. Finally we view Laferrière’s return to Petit Goâve 33 years after having left and his rediscovery of Haiti, where much has changed but sensual beauty still coexists with anarchic violence. A portrait of a fascinating storyteller traced with sensitivity, humor and beauty by Venezuelan director Pedro Ruiz.
Co-sponsored by the Québec Government Office in Chicago, CLACS, and Union Sociocultural Programming.

Le Petit Nicolas (Little Nicholas)
Sunday, February 6, 3PM
MILWAUKEE PREMIERE
Synopsis: French children and Americans who have studied French know and love Le petit Nicolas. Published for the first time in 1959, these children’s books were created by humorist René Goscinny (of Astérix fame) and illustrated by cartoonist Jean-Jacques Sempé. The humor of the books derives from their unique story-telling style: the adventures of Little Nicolas, his classmates, teachers and parents are told in the first person by Nicolas himself. Laurent Tirard’s live-action adaptation features an all-start cast of comic actors facing a crisis of Nicolas’ making.
One day, he overhears a conversation between his loving parents that leads him to believe that his life might change forever, his mother is pregnant! He panics and envisions the worst—soon a little brother will upstage him forever!
Co-sponsored by the French Consulat in Chicago, and SWAAF.

L’argent (Money)
Tuesday, February 8, 7PM
Silent Film Night with Musical Accompaniment

MILWAUKEE PREMIERE

Synopsis: Inspired by a novel of Emile Zola, updated to contemporary France, Marcel L’Herbier’s hugely original and brilliantly constructed allegory of financial speculation is now regarded as one of the true masterpieces of the silent era. Striking in sheer scale and ambition, with 1500 extras, over a dozen cameramen, and sumptuous and grandiose art deco sets (by Lazare Meerson and André Barsacq), it also was the most expensive film ever made in France at that time. Both commercial and avant-garde, it offers some of the greatest formal experiments of the era (including pendulum-like crane movements, eccentric angles, superimpositions, graphic displays of words, and musically percussive editing). Featuring an international cast, which includes Pierre Alcover as the brilliant, yet dangerously sinister villain Saccard, and Metropolis’ Brigitte Helm, as the seductive vixen Baronin Sandorf, this gripping condemnation of world of high finance proves just as compelling and relevant today!

Co-sponsored by the UWM Cinema and Media Studies Program, Film Department, and the Department of Art History.

Orpailleur (The Gold Forest)

Sunday, February 13, 5PM

MILWAUKEE PREMIERE

Synopsis: Filmed in Guiana, Orpailleur centers on Rod, a young Parisian originally from French Guiana who, 18 years after leaving his native country, goes back to find that his elder brother has disappeared. A childhood friend accompanies him as Rod goes in search of what has happened to his brother. They meet up with Yann, a green tourism guide, who is enraged by the environmental destruction of illegal gold panning. Set in the majestic National Amazonian Park, this film tells a story of destruction that is not just about greed, but also about survival.

“Guyanese director Marc Barat’s sure touch results in a well-paced action adventure not to mention a spectacular star: the landscape of the Guianas.” Georgia Popplewell, Caribbean Review of Books

Henri-Georges Clouzot’s Inferno (L’enfer)

Best Documentary, 2010 César Awards

Thursday, February 10, 7PM

Classic French Cinema Night

MILWAUKEE PREMIERE

Synopsis: In 1964, famed director Henri-Georges Clouzot (Wages of Fear, Diabolique) began work on his most ambitious film to date, L’ENFER (INFERNO), a dark psychological study of the mental disintegration of hotel owner Marcel (Serge Reggiani) consumed by jealousy at the supposed infidelity of his stunning young wife, played by Romy Schneider in her prime. The madness and obsession portrayed on camera mirrored Clouzot’s own behavior on the set, and after three weeks of shooting he suffered a heart attack and the production was shut down. In 2005 nearly fifteen hours of film material was unearthed, revealing kaleidoscopic colors and experiments in camera movement that are simply breathtaking. This intriguing doc brings Clouzot’s hallucinatory vision to the screen for the first time, and includes interviews with cast and crew members recounting the legendary (though ill-fated) production.

Cliente (A French Gigolo)

Friday, February 11, 7PM

Saturday, February 12, 5PM

MILWAUKEE PREMIERE

Synopsis: As she did in French Twist (1995), writer-director-performer Josiane Balasko brilliantly combines feminism and farce in Cliente, one of the few films from any nation that centers on the sexuality of a middle-aged woman. Sophisticated fifty-something divorcée Judith (Nathalie Baye) runs a homeshopping TV show with her sister, Irène (Balasko). While Irène dreams of finding Mr. Right, Judith favors the no-strings attachment of paying gigolos for sex. Her preferred escort is construction worker Marco, who happens to be happily married to Fanny, a hairdresser. Balasko’s movie is a refreshingly honest, adult look at the ways in which our needs for sex, love, and money are continually negotiated. Consistently funny, A French Gigolo is nonetheless seriously committed to exposing sexual double standards.

Presented as part of the Tournées Festival.

Co-sponsored by Women Studies Program.

Home (Home)
Saturday, February 12, 9PM
Sunday, February 13, 7PM
MILWAUKEE PREMIERE
Synopsis: Ursula Meier’s feature debut, boosted by the expert cinematography of Agnès Godard, boldly investigates the thin line between sanity and madness, the moments when family closeness becomes claustrophobia. Living at the end of an abandoned four-lane highway, Marthe (Isabelle Huppert) and Michel (Olivier Gourmet) enjoy a blissful, if highly unconventional, existence with their three children: a daughter who spends most of her time sunbathing in a bikini; a younger teenage daughter obsessed with scientific trivia; and a rambunctious young son who appears to be the only one with connections outside the tight-knit clan. But their cocooned existence ends when the highway is reopened, becoming a major thruway for endless cars and trucks. What begins as a study of idiosyncratic domesticity seamlessly shifts into a portrait of psychological horror - and a cautionary tale about environmental disaster. “Ms. Meier puts her characters into play so casually, with no signs of strain, that what happens in ‘Home’ remains surprising and pleasurable, even when the story goes dark, then darker.” Manohla Dargis, The New York Times
Presented as part of the Tournées Festival.

This program is made possible with the generous support of French Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs, the Centre National de la Cinématographie, the Grand Marnier Foundation, the Florence Gould Foundation, and highbrow entertainment for the Tournées Festival films, the French Consulate in Chicago, the Québec Government Office in Chicago, and Dr. Richard Stone.
