

ASK ME ANYTHING

Interviewing
tips?

Career Advice?

Likes & dislikes of your job?

Best classes to take?

with UWM political science alumnus Jonathan Adashek
Chief Communications Officer, IBM

Wednesday, March 10, 1:00-1:30 pm central

Join virtually at:

<https://ibm.webex.com/meet/bboatner>

Register and submit your questions at:

<https://uwm.edu/letters-science/AMA>

We will send questions ahead of time to Mr. Adashek and also take live questions during the event.

Jonathan Adashek is the Chief Communications Officer for IBM, one of the largest international technology companies, where he is in charge of internal and external communications, content creation, social media, and more from their New York City headquarters. His team operates in more than 170 countries.

Prior to joining IBM, Adashek has a lengthy list of international career accomplishments: He lived and worked in Yokohama, Japan, as the Chief Communications Officer at Nissan and in Paris, as the Alliance Global Vice President of Communications for Renault-Nissan-Mitsubishi. He's also worked with Microsoft and Edelman Public Relations.

Before his transition to the private sector, Adashek spent time in Washington, D.C. in roles at the White House and Treasury Department, and he worked on John Kerry's presidential campaign.

