

SFTCCC Data Walk

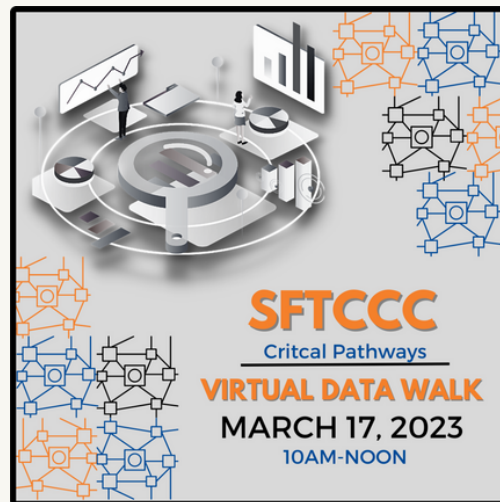

The Purpose

The strain of living in poverty and economic disruptions including loss of a home or job can have a damaging effect on parent-child relationships and increase the risk of neglect. A stable economic situation is integral to preventing neglect, however the resources available to deal with these issues are typically not accessible through maltreatment prevention and child welfare programs.

What is a Data Walk?

A Data Walk is a collaborative process in which "program participants, community residents, and service providers jointly review data presentations in small groups, interpret what the data mean, and collaborate to use their individual expertise to improve policies, programs, and other factors of community change." (Urban Institute)

We are sharing the individual Data Stations across our five focus areas (Lived Experience, Mandated Reporting, Poverty and Economic Concrete Supports, Social Isolation and Connectedness, and Workforce) that we developed for our March 17th Data Walk, so that you can review them, reflect on what they mean to you, and share your experience and expertise as they relate to the data and potential community change.

Get Involved

We have appreciated your participation and contribution to our Strong Families, Thriving Children, Connected Communities initiative to better understand the root causes of neglect over several roundtables in 2022. We will be using what we learned in the Data Walk and previous Roundtables to develop our Critical Pathways, the specific problem/priority spaces that are focal points for elevating or designing specific and actionable system-level solutions.

Your feedback and ongoing engagement with the initiative will be essential to the development and progress of those Critical Pathways. Please see the following opportunities to support the initiative.

Basecamp – Sign up to join our SFTCCC community of change makers where you can stay up to date on future events, review our SFTCCC archives and research, and engage with us and one another.

Building Brains with Relationships – Register for one of our upcoming workshops.
