Course Description
This introductory course will compare and contrast the political and socio-economic systems of several states—industrialized and developing, democratic and authoritarian. We begin with a theoretical introduction and consider central issues such as political culture, institutions, political crises and discontinuity (i.e. revolution and dictatorship), and economic development. We then examine the following six case studies: two Western European democracies (Britain and France), a former communist regime (Russia), a reformed communist regime (China), a developing state (Mexico), and finally our own presidential democracy (the United States).

Grades
Grades will be based on two midterms (25% each), one final exam (35%), and attendance and participation (15%). No make-up exams will be given without a medical excuse or an excused University absence. Students must also produce the appropriate documentation stating why they were not able to be in class at the time of the exam. If you have a problem or miss an exam, get in touch with me immediately (beforehand if possible). If you miss an exam without giving me prior notice, you MUST contact me within 24 hours of that exam, or you will not be allowed to take a make-up exam under any circumstances.

Class attendance and participation are required and will affect your grade. Attendance will be taken during each lecture. Be sure to sign the attendance sheet each time that class meets. Students may not miss more than two lectures without it negatively affecting their grade. Participation grades will be based on the best five (of six) participation essays/notes and in-class participation during discussion. The participation discussion questions will be posted on Canvas the week before they are due and will be collected at the beginning of class on the day of the scheduled discussion, as noted on the syllabus. The discussion notes will be graded as follows: check+ = A; check = B; check- = C. Anything below a check- will not count towards the participation grade. For this three-credit course, students are expected to devote six hours of study per week reading, studying, and working on assignments.

Assuming that there are no changes in the schedule, the midterms will be given on Wednesday of the 7th week (March 4, 2020) and of the 12th week (April 13, 2020). The final exam will be cumulative and is on Monday, May 11, 2020, 12:30-2:30 p.m.
If you are a student that needs accommodations in order to meet any of the requirements of this class, please contact me during the first two weeks of class.
