Finals Study Plan!

Planning and starting to study early can make finals seem less stressful. Try and form study groups and study in a place that you can be productive.

1. Rate your level of confidence 1-10 (highest) for approaching Finals (test/exam, project (singular or group), presentation, paper):

2. What needs to happen to increase or maintain confidence?

Resources/ Materials/ Outreach Needed:	Resources/ Materials/ Outreach Needed:	Resources/ Materials/ Outreach Needed:	Resources/ Materials/Outreach Needed:

1. How are you getting into exam mode?

2. What are additional (non-academic) supports or resources needed? * This can include communicating changes in schedule/routine to family, job, other external responsibilities. *

Tips:

- Allocate your time. Give yourself some time for breaks to occur.
- Make sure you have accounted for review time and practice time.
- Identify how you are choosing to operate: harder/most time needed to easier/less time needed or vice versa when determining your schedule. Be sure to note due dates/scheduled dates.
- Be realistic with the time you must commit.
