UNDERGRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

SPRING 2022

URBAN STUDIES OFFICE IN BOLTON 702
(414) 229-4751

HTTP://WWW.URBANSTUDIES.UWM.EDU
The Urban Studies major provides the opportunity for students to explore scholarship on cities, suburban communities, and metropolitan regions with an interdisciplinary lens. Coursework in the major is drawn from the affiliated areas of African and African Diaspora Studies, Architecture, Criminal Justice, Educational Policy & Community Studies, Geography, History, Public and Nonprofit Administration, Political Science, Public Health, Sociology and Urban Planning, in addition to Urban Studies. Although interdisciplinary, the discipline of Urban Studies encompasses a distinct body of knowledge, one that combines both theoretical and applied approaches to understand urban processes. The major is designed to be flexible to allow the student to develop a strong foundation from the core courses and then build a set of elective courses that address particular urban histories and problems from different disciplines, depending on student interest and future goals.

Undergraduate Major in Urban Studies (L&S/BA); To declare a major in Urban Studies, make an appointment with the Urban Studies Associate Director, Jamie Harris to complete the declaration form.

Spring Semester 2022 Courses Offered

URB STD 250  Exploring the Urban Environment
LEC 001  Daniel Benson  TR  2:00-3:15 PM

With an increasing number of people living in urban areas around the world, cities have become the focus of academic as well personal interest. Drawing on Milwaukee and other notable cities of the United States, this course will address the transition from rural to urban society and the interconnected influence of urbanization on social, political, economic, environmental and cultural spheres of human life. We will learn how to approach the city using theories and case-studies, including a few techniques for researching the “urban”. Divided into several small units, the course will introduce students to various (usually broad, interdisciplinary) approaches that scholars use to study the urban condition. Additionally, each of these smaller units will have readings/case studies that focus more specifically on concerns that are important or unique to Milwaukee and the metropolitan region. We will also learn about the changing nature of cities in the age of globalization and the future of urbanization. Additionally, typical course work will be augmented by guest speakers and chances to participate in extracurricular activities and events, both within the department as well as the community at large.

URB STD 360*  Perspectives on the Urban Scene
LEC  201  Xiaohan Gu  ONLINE  W 9:30-10:45 AM

Green Cities: Urban Agriculture, Sustainability and Environmental Justice

As our world becomes increasingly urbanized, cities face growing social, economic, and environmental challenges that pose the questions: “what does a green city really look like?” and “for whom are they designed?” In this course, students will have the opportunity to explore conflicts of environmental social inequality in cities, including the uneven distribution of green space, gentrification, and food injustice. Looking at the topic of green cities from a critical perspective, this course will examine how neoliberal policies impact who has access to green amenities like parks and healthy, affordable food sources, while exploring efforts by cities to create more just, sustainable urban communities using equitable planning strategies and urban agriculture. Finally, the course will touch on our own relationships to the built and natural environments, the characteristics that we think a green city should have, and the larger meaning and significance of urban environmental sustainability.

URB STD 377  Urbanism and Urbanization
LEC 001  Jamie Harris  R  4:30 – 7:00 PM

The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the process of urbanization and the nature of urban society. Students will be exposed to a variety of classic and contemporary urban theorists and different methodological approaches to the study of urban areas as they investigate several substantive urban topics and case studies to account for the changing social and spatial patterns of cities and metropolitan regions. By the end of the semester, students will be familiar with a number of key theorists and interpretive frameworks and be able to apply that knowledge to help make sense of, and consider solutions for, a number of central issues facing cities and regions today such as globalization, urban growth and decline, immigration, concentrated poverty and urban sprawl, regional governance, transportation, and sustainable development, among others, and the implications of each for the urban form. This is a required course for urban studies majors. Notes: Sociol 377 & Urb Std 377 are jointly- offered; they count as repeats of one another. Prereq: jr st & a Sociol 100-level course; or Urb Std 250(P).
This course is designed to provide a capstone experience for urban studies majors in their senior year. This course will help students to develop a fuller understanding of urban studies as an interdisciplinary field, with its distinct subject areas, theoretical frameworks, and methodologies for conducting research—in short, what it means to be an urbanist. There are several goals in mind for this course:

1. To provide exposure to the field of urban studies and urban studies scholarship.
2. To develop the skills necessary to plan, conduct, and evaluate urban research.
3. To apply these skills to a relevant urban-related subject matter.
4. To present research in a scholarly forum.
5. To engage and interact with scholars;
6. and, to gain understanding of what one can do with an urban studies major.

This course also fulfills the L&S research requirement. This course will be run as a seminar with close reading and discussion of several articles that relate to urban studies scholarship and the research process. There will be a number of small assignments to help students develop their final research project.
AFRIC 125*  Economics of the Black Community
LEC 201  Abera Gelan  ONLINE

A survey of key economic principles, and elements that structure economic behavior in the black community.

AFRIC 319*  African American Urban History
LEC 201  Ermitte Saint Jacques  ONLINE

African American Urban History examines the social and cultural transformation of African American communities through the historical processes of urbanization, including the Great Migration to northern cities, deindustrialization, suburbanization, gentrification, and more recently reverse migration to southern cities. The effects of government policies, economic trends, and institutional racism in shaping African American urban communities are explored within the internal dynamics of familial structure, social class, political expression, economic organization, and cultural production. Throughout the course, the struggles for full citizenship and equality, which have been essential to the processes of urban community formation, is highlighted.

HIST 463  History of the American City
LEC 001  Amanda I Seligman  TR  9:30 AM - 10:45 AM

This course provides an overview of the history of American cities from Indigenous settlement to the present. It is arranged in roughly chronological fashion, but topics are introduced thematically – so the discussion on any given day may range over hundreds of years. Major course themes include urban demographics; the development of the planned city; infrastructure networks; regulations and services; city culture; and the urban form. Because of UWM’s location, Milwaukee and Chicago receive special attention throughout the semester. Short paper assignments cultivate students’ ability to use primary sources to explore the past. The exams focus on synthesizing broad course themes and summarizing major topics explored in lecture.

HIST 600  Seminar in History: African Americans and Central Cities, 1940 - 1970
SEM 201  Joe Austin  ONLINE

In 1910, approximately 80% of the African American population lived in rural areas, and 90% in the southern region of the US. Approximately 1.5 million African Americans migrated to the north and west during the First Great Migration (1910-1930) and another 5 million more during the Second Great Migration (1940-1970). By 1970, almost half of the African American population no longer lived in the south, and 80% of African Americans lived in cities. This is an undergraduate research/capstone course on the Second Great Migration with particular emphasis on the central cities. Requirements include a 25-page final research paper based on primary research on a topic related to the course theme negotiated with Joe A. Short assignments earlier in the semester will build toward the final paper and readings for the class will be of direct use for most final paper topics. All readings will be available for download/reading online from UWM Library. Readings will include sections from The Southern Diaspora: How the Great Migrations of Black and White Southerners Transformed America, James Gregory, 2005; Black Metropolis: A Study of Negro Life in a Northern City, St. Clair Drake and Horace Cayton, 1945; essays by James Baldwin; Coming of Age in Jim Crow DC, Paula Austin, 2019; and Presumed Criminal: Black Youth and the Justice System in Postwar New York, Carl Suddler, 2019, among others.
