Course Overview

The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the process of urbanization and the nature of urban society. Students will be exposed to a number of theoretical perspectives and methodological approaches to the study of urban society, and will examine a number of substantive urban topics and case studies to account for the changing social and spatial patterns of cities and metropolitan regions, focusing primarily on N. American contexts. Over the course of the semester, in addition to examining early and contemporary urban theorists, we will address racial and class polarization in cities, urban place-making and cultural spaces, globalization and urban political economy, urban redevelopment and gentrification, urban sprawl and sustainable development, among other topics, and the implications of each for the urban form. This course will emphasize a close readings of texts, considerable discussion, and student contributions in the way of class presentations and independent research. The first two-thirds of the course will address key topics in the field of urban studies; the last third of the course will focus on four major urban policy areas (housing/econ development, transportation, regionalism, and sustainable development). While many of the course readings and topics examined in this class are drawn from the subfield of urban sociology, some are also taken from the fields of urban studies, urban geography, urban history, and urban planning.

Course Goals, Objectives, and Expectations

By the end of the semester, students should be able to:

- identify and characterize processes of urbanization and patterns of urban development and change of metropolitan areas
- Identify and describe the work of early and contemporary scholars and theorists in the field of urban studies and relate the significance of their contributions to the field of urban studies
- Identify and understand the key issues and policy debates in the areas of economic development, housing, transportation, regionalism, and sustainable development, among others

In addition, course assignments are geared to help students:

- develop critical thinking and analysis skills
- further develop oral and written expression skills
- continue to develop and improve research and presentation skills
- apply learning beyond the classroom to their own life and professional life

Expectations:

- ❖ Students will complete assigned readings on time and be prepared to discuss them in class discussion
- ❖ As a 3-credit, 300 level/junior standing course, the university expects a time commitment of roughly 9-10 hours per week spent on completing course readings & lectures, reviewing & studying, participating in discussions, and researching & presenting.
- ❖ Students will meet assignment deadlines and upload class assignments to Canvas.

Requirements and Grades

Student performance in this class will be assessed by a variety of evaluation techniques: in-class discussions, exam/quiz, reading responses, and a research paper and presentation. Each of these assignments is aimed at developing students' academic skills. By the end of the course students should not only have a better knowledge of urban society and development and change, but improved their ability to express themselves orally and in writing, and to apply their learning beyond the classroom.

I. Weekly Reading Commentary (15% of grade)

Each week students will write a short commentary (300-600 words) on the week's readings due uploaded to Canvas by Thursday at 3pm. This commentary is to help you interact and engage with the ideas and histories presented in the weekly assigned readings. It is meant to be your reaction where you may note what you found to be interesting, challenging, or surprising, for example. You should also use this space to discuss how you see the assigned readings relating to each other and to the weekly topic as a whole. Along with your commentary, you should pose at least one thoughtful question about a reading(s) or something that relates more generally to the readings/topic. All weeks are required, but the lowest score will be dropped.

II. Small Group Work/Class Participation (10% of grade)

There will be several small group exercises in which your class participation will be graded. Typically, I will ask students to get into a small group to answer some questions about a film, discuss a reading, or complete an exercise. In some cases, I may ask students to come to class with something prepared to discuss with your group. Afterward, we will discuss these responses with the class as a whole. These in-class assignments will be turned-in and graded. The point of these kinds of exercises is to draw on students' own experiences and knowledge and to facilitate learning in ways that are collaborative and active. Your preparation and class participation are critical for these kinds of exercises to be successful.

III. Midterm Exam (30% of grade) & Quiz (15% of grade)

There will be an in-class midterm exam. I will provide more information about the content of the exam in the weeks leading up to the exam. There will also be an online quiz covering the last five weeks of course topics.

IV. Research Paper and Presentation – 30% of grade

Introduction and Objectives: One of the primary assignments for the semester will be a final research paper. The purpose of the paper is three-fold: 1) To provide a way for students to explore material in a more in-depth way than is possible from the weekly course materials; 2) to allow students to carve out an area that suits their own interests, background, and future aspirations; 3) and, to provide an opportunity for students in the class to learn from their peers. Each student will have the opportunity to develop their research paper on a topic they find interesting and present their research to the class. This may be an exploration of an urban initiative, a review of some urban development, a case study of an urban issue, etc. I will provide a list of some possible topics. A proposal and annotated bibliography will be due the 10th week. Students will present their research paper to the class during one of the last two weeks of the semester. I will shortly provide more information about the proposal and paper, presentation, and grading rubric.
